

CRC TiME Regional Hub

The Cooperative Research Centre for Transformations in Mining Economies (CRC TiME) is working to enable mining regions and communities transition to prosperous and sustainable post mining futures. CRC TiME is a unique ten year, multi-million dollar partnership between the Commonwealth Government, regional communities, the mining sector, state and local governments and Australia's innovation system.

What are Regional Hubs?

- A Community of Practice comprised of local organisations, who share knowledge and develop ideas to support the development and ongoing sustainability of their region
- 7 hubs across the states and territories

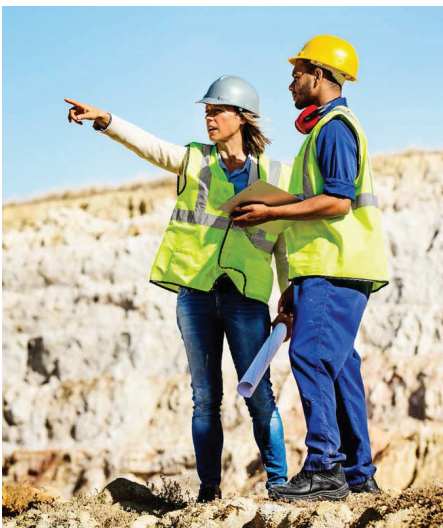

What is the purpose of a Regional Hub?

- Create a shared vision, alignment of goals, and collaborative actions to achieve positive social and economic transformation through mine land rehabilitation
- Provide a neutral space for honest discussion that supports better outcomes for your region
- Strengthened relationships with other organisations in the region
- Strengthened relationships with other Regional Hubs for cross-pollination of best practice and lessons learnt
- Facilitate the dissemination of the latest research findings

Who is involved in the Regional Hub?

- CRC TiME stakeholders who will contribute to an agreed program of meetings (2 or 3 per year)
- A Secretariat to coordinate the program
- CRC TiME key researchers will attend to present the latest findings
- Other invited stakeholders
